

Student Writers Wanted!

Get articles published online during the 2011-2012 School Year

HBCU Lifestyle is looking for high school & college contributors who would like to showcase their writing talents and express themselves to our diverse online community.

REQUIREMENTS:

Currently enrolled high school or college students with access to a computer and internet.

Students must be ages 16-24 years old.

Have a natural flair and passion for writing.
Note: This is not a paid position.

Education, Community, Culture, Creative Writing, and Poetry are the type of subjects preferred.

Students must be able to submit articles on-time in a Word document.

Students will only have First Name, Age, and their Home City published with their articles.

Students under the age of 18 will need parents consent form filed with HBCU Lifestyle before publication.

STUDENTS

Looking to get exposure for yourself through writing?

This is your opportunity to get your writing published on a professional lifestyle magazine site with national viewership.

TEACHERS

If you teach creative writing, English, Language Arts or ESOL?

HBCU Lifestyle presents an opportunity for your students to develop their writing and editing skills to meet High School Standards for Writing.

PARENTS

Looking for a way to encourage your child's writing?

Get your son or daughter's writings professionally published and encourage them to further develop their talents.

TEACHERS: Contact Wm Jackson (DCPS) for more information. Jacksonw@duvalschools.org